

Ballots and machines are sealed, signed for, and tracked—before, during, and after each election.

This chain of custody is crucial, but like seatbelts, airbags, and brakes work together to keep you safe when you're in a car, it's just one of many layers protecting your vote.

